Lives and works in Traralgon, Victoria

Inspired after seeing masterpieces, including works from the Dutch Golden Age, housed in museums around the world, at the ripe age of 51 Kate Waanders began her painting career in 2016. The self-taught artist's realism practice is centrally focused on still-life paintings; a visual language that connects us with the simplicity and beauty of elements of the everyday.

Flora, fauna and household items feature in Waanders' compositions, tightly constructed with what appears to be a sense of spirited purpose. However the artist says of her works, "Sometimes there is some link or story that connects the objects or animals in my art. Other times the connection or reason for their presence in my art is simply form, colour and texture. I don't feel that artwork necessarily must convey a deeper meaning. Sometimes people see a story that is altogether different from mine, or they see a meaning in a painting that I had not even considered. I guess that is what makes it so much fun."

Waanders has placed in various art awards such as the Tyres Art Festival, Yarram Rotary Art Show, Camberwell Art Show, Warragul Rotary Art Show. Her works feature in Amber Creswell Bell's book 'Still-Life' and have been shown in exhibitions at AK Bellinger Gallery and Michael Reid Northern Beaches.
